

Consumer Financial Policies

1. Account Eligibility and Consumer Responsibility

- Consumers must provide accurate account and payment details before purchasing content.
- Consumers are responsible for securing their account and payment credentials.
- The company may suspend accounts for fraud, identity issues, or unauthorized payment behavior.

2. Pricing and Fee Disclosure

- Full purchase price, including fees and taxes, must be clearly displayed.
- Price changes apply only to future purchases.

3. Payment Authorization and Processing

- Transactions are valid only after successful authorization.
- The company may hold suspicious transactions for review.

4. Access After Successful Payment

- Access is granted only after successful payment is recorded.
- Content access does not transfer copyright ownership.

5. Refund Policy

- Refunds may be requested when payments fail or when there is a verified platform-side issue.
- Refunds generally not granted for change of mind, dissatisfaction after valid access, or technical issues on the consumer's side.

6. Failed, Pending, and Duplicate Payments

- Pending payments may lock access until confirmed.
- Duplicate charges must be investigated, and corrections applied.

7. Subscription and Auto-Renewal Rules

- Subscription details must be disclosed before sign-up.
- Auto-renewal charges continue until cancellation.

8. Chargebacks and Payment Disputes

- Disputes may result in temporary suspension of access.
- Fraudulent chargebacks may lead to account suspension.

9. Consumer Fraud and Abuse Prevention

- Consumers must not use unauthorized payment methods or fake identities.
- Fraudulent activity may lead to account restrictions or legal action.

10. Taxes, Currency, and Exchange Handling

- Displayed prices may include or exclude taxes, depending on the market.
- Exchange rate discrepancies may occur for foreign currency purchases.

11. Transaction Records and Receipts

- Consumers can review transaction history, receipts, and refund outcomes.

12. Consumer Support for Financial Issues

- Support channels are available for payment issues, refunds, and fraud disputes.

13. Suspension, Termination, and Loss of Access

- Accounts may be suspended for fraud or policy violations.
- Misconduct may lead to the loss of access and denial of refunds.

14. Policy Changes

- These policies may be updated. Continued use signifies acceptance of changes.
